SCHOOLS IN TERRITORIES

NUMBER OF ALL KINDS IN OKLAHOMA AND I. T.

RESOURCES AND EXPENSES

Good Showing Under The Great Disadvantages Both Territories Labor—Statehood Needed.

E. T. Tucker, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, has received a communication from Fred L. Weiner, secretary of the School Land Department, Territory of Oklahoma, which contains some interesting information relative to educational matters in the two territories. The World gives the following for the benefit of its readers:

A conservative estimate of the population of Oklahoma at this time is 800,000, of Indian Territory about 750,000. The Oklahoma figures are obtained from the assessor's returns and local census; the Indian Territory figures from the record of the United States Indian Inspector.

The 1905 school enumeration of Oklahoma was 211,000; enrollment in attendance at the schools last year was 160,000. There are 3,069 school districts; 3,228 schools taught, and 3,671 teachers employed. The expenses of the local schools last year were $1,698,765. There are two county and fifty city high schools.

The Territory of Oklahoma has seven higher institutions of learning free to the citizens of Oklahoma and Indian Territory. In addition to this there are a dozen or more denominational or sectarian schools.

The school lands of the Territory of Oklahoma number 1,700,000 acres. The rentals of these lands amount to something over $400,000 a year, which is distributed to the local schools semi-annually.

IT TAKES A WISE MAN TO PLAY THE FOOL IN A MODERN CIRCUS

"It takes brains to play the fool."

So the equestrian director of the Sells-Floto Shows said when asked concerning clowns and clowning.

"I have been in the circus business all my life and during that interesting period have, like an actor, played many parts. I have made a close study of the profession and particularly the clown department, for there is nothing to a circus without a clown.

"It has come under my observation that the brainiest performers always make the best clowns and produce fun that is not only wholesome, but makes the man, no matter how discontented with the world, forget his troubles temporarily and dissolve his hardened features into a grin. When you compare the actor with the clown the latter has a handicap regarding his methods and his facilities of bringing forth laughs.

"The other has the author to thank nine times out of ten for some 'fat' part. Then, too, he is enabled to say things that produce fun and which are not his own. But take the man behind the whitened face and he has nothing to help him but his gestures, his nimble legs and his art of so con-forting his face as to bring forth mirth. It's real work to make them laugh without any aid whatsoever excepting the few items I have mentioned. Furthermore, a clown must be born, he is not made or manufactured.

"For instance, take Alonzo, the premier 'joey' of the Sells-Floto Shows, and he would be the last person in the world you would pick out as a professional jester. He is the soberest appearing cuss you ever saw on the street. Yet he has but to walk from the dressing tent to the big show and I laugh. There is something about that stride that is funny, and when he allows the toy balloon to get away from him and sail through the air, crying after it, I have seen the spectators almost fall off the seats with laughter. Out in Ogden, Utah, I remember one old lady could hardly be stopped. Now, you let someone else try that same little trick and it's not funny at all."

All the funny clowns will be here with Sells-Floto, May 1.

BASE BALL YESTERDAY.

Seen by Old Gentleman from Indianapolis.

A World man saw the game yesterday at Athletic Park, and up to the seventh inning took some interest in it. After that he preferred listening to a garrulous old gentleman from Illinois who was anxious to relate his experiences in base ball:

"I always was a gol darned old base ball fool, but I like the young fellows although they don't seem to me like the boys I met in Indianapolis in the eighties. Harry Dean, he was there. He pitched for the Cincinnati Red Stockings in '69 and won the championship for them. In the old days a base ball man had to know how to play billiards as well as base ball. Why! Harry Dean, Cal McVey, Anson Spaulding and a few more of the old boys that stopped at the old Bates house—this was after the war—were the best players in the country. Indianapolis was quite a live town then. It used to be the headquarters for the Knights of the Golden Circle and all the boys, including Joe Bingham and Jim Heffernan went to see the games.

The old man, becoming enthusiastic, went on: "Why, up there it was one continued list of victories for the home town. Say, don't you remember the Syracuse Stars, the Alleghenies and Indianapolis? They were the only clubs outside of the National League, and could beat everything in the country in or out of any league. Silver Flint and Nolan? Why, I remember them well. Young man, I have a retentive memory. There were the greatest players in the United States at the time, but later we had Jack Glascock, Jerry Denny, Williamson, and other crackjacks. It has been many a long day since I have seen a ball game. Only that I heard a big red faced woman howling for an affidavit to have the boys arrested today. I would not have been at this game. The boys from Oklahoma City are surely all right—they are very gentlemanly and play well. They are too fast for the Tulsa boys, but if this city keeps growing like it is, in two years it will be wanted by one of the big leagues, and will be able to get the best players in the country."

The score was 9 to 2, and the old gentleman said he was going to call at the World office and tell some stories.

Oklahoma City has a splendid array of ball players—athletes and gentlemen. While making the Brady hotel headquarters, they have been highly enjoyed by the guests, and Mr. Chim, the manager, commended for his good judgment in selecting such a team.
